By ALISON ALOISIO

Sixty-three members of the Class of 2000 will graduate Friday evening in Telstar High School's 32nd Commencement.

Graduation week activities began with Senior Awards and Scholarship Night on Tuesday. On Wednesday, the class was scheduled to travel to the Balsams Hotel for Senior Class Day and Banquet.

Tonight (Thursday) class members, family and friends will gather for a "Coming Together" celebration at 7 p.m.

Friday night's Commencement will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the school gymnasium. Following the

Davis and Clough reflect on 35 years of leadership

By REBECCA ZICARELLI

An era in local education is about to end, with the retirements of Ted Davis this year and Bill Clough next year. The era began in 1983, when Davis took over the reins as Telstar High School principal and Clough became Gould Academy headmaster.

Davis began teaching in 1965. He came to Telstar to teach math in 1968, the year SAD 44 was formed.

Clough began teaching English in 1962 at the Holderness School, a private school in New Hampshire. He worked in both public and private schools in New Hampshire and Europe before coming to Gould as Headmaster.

Both men are exceptions in their field. Most principals and headmasters stay at a job between five and seven years, they both agreed. Together, they will have given 35 years of their lives as school leaders. In reflecting on that time, they both recognize that quality education needs to go beyond academics.

"We provide students with opportunities for decision-making and problem solving," Davis said. "We try to instill in kids the ability to make good choices and give them experiences which they can use in their lives. Their education is important, and the more broadly we can educate them, the more experiences we can give them, the better off they are going to be."

"Habit," Clough said. "Habits about judgment and choices. It pretty much starts at the secondary

The Battle of Snow Falls

Capt. Jonathan Snow fires and kills a marauding Indian chief who was about to attack him. Snow was then set upon and killed by the rest of the chief's band, who also captured his partner Jonathan Butterfield and took him into slavery in Canada. Butterfield eventually escaped and returned to tell the story of the 1755 encounter, which was reenacted Sunday as part of West Paris's highly successful Old Home

Days revival. In addition to a parade, amusements and rides, a supper, beano game street dance, fishing derby and other traditional town-fair events, the weekend also featured a return — after an absence of two decades — of soapbox racing. More races are planned for later this summer. Captain Snow was played Sunday by Forrest Tinsley, the Indian chief (whose real name is unknown) by Larry Noyes. (Photo: Daniels)

Rebels win a thriller; play Saturday for state title

By ALISON ALOISIO

Clutch hitting by Steve Estes and Ross Baker with two outs in the bottom of the seventh inning gave Telstar High School the Western Class C Baseball Championship Tuesday. It was the Rebels' first regional title in 11 years.

The #1-seeded Rebels defeated #6 Livermore Falls in a game that ended in a heart-stopping play at home plate.

Telstar had gone up early 3-0 against Andies top pitcher Travis Dube in the afternoon game at St. Joseph's College. But LF came back with four runs in the fourth against Paul Cox, who had pitched three and one-third perfect innings until that point.

The score remained 4-3 for the next three innings. The Rebels' Wade Osgood came in for Cox in the sixth and pitched a strong two innings.

Then Greg Koch led off the seventh with an infield single. He stole second and moved to third on a ground out by Cox.

Josh Mowery popped up to the catcher for the second out, bringing Estes to the plate as Telstar's last hope.

He delivered a solid single to right field, and Koch scored easily from third.

Coach Ryan Casey then put Will Seames in as a pinch runner for Estes. Baker, up next, drove the ball to right center field, where the Andies' Ross Timberlake made a valiant diving effort to come up with the catch. But the ball bounced out of his glove — leaving the play at the plate as

Route 26 reconstruction

Locke Mills work starts this summer

By ALISON ALOISIO

Work on widening Route 26 through Locke Mills is expected to get underway this summer, an MDOT engineer said last week.

The 1.6-mile road project has been in the planning stages for several years. "We're hoping in early July to advertise (for bids)," said

Bob Watson of the Maine Department of Transportation. Work would likely begin in early August, he said.

With the later-season starting date, the project would probably be continued into next spring, said Watson. Work for this year would wrap up in late October or early November.

Watson said his department had hoped to get bid advertisements out earlier, but delays prevented it.

The plan is to widen the 22-foot-wide travel lane to 24 feet, and add four-foot shoulders in the village.

Bethel faces decision on deteriorating bridge into Mason Township

By MICHAEL DANIELS

A deteriorating bridge on Bethel's side of the boundary with Mason Township has become a matter of concern for town selectmen.

The bridge is located on the Smith Farm Road, approximately 500 yards from the Flat Road, and just a few feet before the Mason line. The Smith Farm Road is a dead end, and provides the only road access across the East Branch of the Pleasant River for three residences in Mason.

It also provides the only way for ambulances and fire engines to reach those residences, but the wooden deck of the bridge has deteriorated to the point that it may not be safe for such vehicles.

"It's becoming unsafe for passage for any significant load," Town Manager Scott Cole told the selectmen last week. And Bethel is under contract to Oxford County to provide fire and rescue service for

CREATING CHANGE AT TELSTAR

To the Editor:

Time to celebrate. As the 1999-2000 school year comes to an end it is time to recognize and thank the Telstar Regional High School faculty for successfully implementing year one of the Promising Futures Grant. Seminars, new courses, senior celebrations and satellite groups are some of the recent changes the faculty made during this past school year.

Two faculty members need to be singled out for leading their colleagues down a challenging and exciting educational path. Claire Carver and Charlie Raymond have inspired their colleagues to embrace change for the advancement of the school. Their innovative vision was approved by 100 percent of the Telstar faculty and administration, who backed the grant and rolled up their sleeves to create change. It is very obvious that the faculty and administration made the changes because they care about the teens of this community.

As we look ahead, it will be with great excitement as a new high school principal comes aboard at the Telstar complex. Dr. O'Neil, Carroll Higgins and Sally Hannon will be the three administrators who, I hope, will be a trio that can work cooperatively together and make the grades six through 12 facility a place where learning takes place and everyone is working together as a team to provide the best education for the youth of our communities.

THANKS FOR WES CLASS TRIP

To the Editor:

When the Woodstock Elementary School fifth-graders went on their field trip to Boston, they had some wonderful experiences — Boston Science Museum, the Aquarium and Duck Tour, a live performance of the "Student Prince," the Boston T ride, and finally Lexington/Concord where they were excited to see firsthand some of the places they had studied about in their history lessons.

This trip would not have been possible without the tremendous support received from the community. Thanks go to everyone who helped sell and who bought the sap buckets and garden angels, and the booster club tickets. Thanks to those who donated things for the raffles and to everyone who bought chances to win our great prizes.

We are very grateful to Earl Tyler and Leah Deegan at the Jackson-Silver Post for sponsoring the basket bingo. They did an outstanding job explaining things so that our non-bingo-going crowd had a lot of fun playing the games. And Rick Whitney at Maine Line Products contributed lots of goodies to help fill the baskets and make them even more attractive.

Our thanks also to our principal, Jolene Littlehale, who made a personal commitment to making sure everything went just right, and it did.

We are lucky to have such a caring community to support our children.

BRAVO, YOUNG MUSICIANS

To the Editor:

When remarkable events happen among us, we all need to take note and be glad. Community members who attended concerts given by the music students of SAD44 on May 3 and May 31 were treated to the results of a great deal of dedicated, enthusiastic work. An astounding number of students participated, some in multiple roles. Their enthusiasm was a delight and the quality of their music was first-rate. Bravo, music students. And thank you music faculty for the loving dedication you so obviously bring to your work.

Thanks, too, to the School Board and administration for supporting this effort. Its impact on the students involved and on all of us who benefit from their gifts will last longer than we can imagine.

PLAYGROUND COMMITTEE THANKS

To the Editor:

On behalf of the Davis Park Playground Committee, I would like to thank the many individuals, businesses and philanthropic organizations that donated time, energy and money to make the Davis Park Playground come to life.

Of particular note are three students: Shaun Hinkley, Bion Swan and Ryan Walker, and their teacher Mr. Tim O'Connor. Working together in the fall seminar course, Community Building Projects, these students designed and created a helicopter for the playground. This past week they brought their donation to the park and installed it for all to enjoy.

The following day the students in Mrs. Tammy Davis' sixth-grade adviser group worked for nearly two hours sprucing up the playground and planting flowers they had grown. In fact, many students from the middle and high school have been involved in the playground project, giving selflessly of their time and energy so that the young children of the area have a wonderful place to play. They are modeling the generosity of giving that they see around them, and it has been my privilege to work with them.

FROM NORTH WOODSTOCK TO SEATTLE

To the Editor:

Greetings from the Rainy City. Some of you may remember me as the author of the North Woodstock news column several years ago, before my Aunt Suzanne took over. For the past year, I have made my home in Seattle, Wash., and I thought it would be nice of my old readers.

Last May, I graduated from the University of Maine at Farmington, having completed two years there and two at the University of Hartford in Connecticut. After graduation, my fiancée and I moved out here to the West Coast, where we've been experiencing an entirely different type of life. Let me tell you, there is nothing like Big City rudeness to make one appreciate Maine.

Don't get me wrong, Seattle is a very interesting place to live. There's never a lack of things to do and unique people to meet. I guess my main gripe is with the lack of common courtesy and friendliness that is a fixture of Maine. For instance, in my hometown of Bryant Pond, you might pass your worst enemy on the street, someone who makes your skin crawl and your blood boil, but you'll both put on a friendly face and exchange pleasantries; it's the way we were raised, and it leaves you with a warm feeling inside. You all know how it is to say "good morning" to someone you don't really care for; you smile to yourself and mumble, "Well if we can be civil to each other, anything can happen." And of course, that's nothing compared to meeting up with a close friend, stopping to talk, and suddenly realizing that an hour has passed.

Out here, if you smile at people on the street, they will often look down at the ground. It's not that they are bad people, but they were raised differently; they were taught to be on their guard, reserved and cautious at all times. And in some respects they need to be; crime and hostility exist, and it's important that people be careful. It's sad, though, that they miss out on certain comforts. And this is not to say that everyone here goes around with permanent frowns on their faces. I don't want to discourage any of you from visiting.

Another thing that is different here is a lack of discernable seasons. In New England, we are lucky to have four distinct seasons, but that is not the case in Seattle. Last winter we received snow once, and only an inch at that. It's comical to watch everyone throw up their hands and exclaim over it, though. The most depressing time for me, though, was definitely the fall. Autumn has always been my favorite season, due in part to the painting-brought-to-life quality of the foliage. Out here, there was so much eye candy, not pretty color, no scent of smoke from burning leaves, nothing, really, to distinguish fall from summer.

But enough complaining. Seattle is a great place to enjoy the arts. Kami and I have visited the Seattle Art Museum and will be going back soon, as one day is just not enough time to take in all the exhibits. There is no shortage of plays to see and music to hear. It's also a treat to have a different coffee shop on each corner, some serving delicious sandwiches and cookies as well as their famed beverages. However, the most fun thing we've experienced so far is undoubtedly the Underground Tour. You literally walk under the streets and observe the ruins of the city where it once stood. That's right, somehow Seattle is higher now, due to a great fire that wiped out the original city years ago, hard to understand without the tour guide, but quite an engaging experience nonetheless.

I hope everyone in Maine is enjoying the transition from spring to summer. North Woodstock must be bustling with activity right now. I have been in contact via e-mail with Lori and Dawn Davis. They are living together, both teachers, and I'm sure are happy to be on the verge of vacation. The same goes for my Aunt Louise, and my cousins, Joelle and Errol Silver. It's been three years since I have lived in "Pinhook," but it remains alive and vibrant in my memory. The spirits of my late grandparents, Emma and Lee Billings, are no doubt hovering in the air, watching over Rob and Norma, Phil and Sonja, Red and Lois, Lloyd, and the rest of the citizens of beautiful North Woodstock.

Arlan Jodrey seeks reelection

State Rep. Arlan Jodrey (R-Bethel) has announced that he is seeking a second term to the Maine House. Jodrey represents District 65, which includes Andover, Bethel, Byron, Eustis, Gilead, Hanover, Madrid, Newry, Rangeley, Stoneham, Upton, Weld and Plantations of Coplin, Dallas, Lincoln, Magalloway, Rangeley and Sandy River, plus unorganized territories including Albany Township and Mason Township.

"Representing the residents of Oxford County in Augusta over the past year and a half has been a satisfying and rewarding experience," said Jodrey. "I have learned a lot about state government proceedings and how to work within the system in order to help my constituents. Their interests are my primary concern, and it is my duty to see to it that I support those issues important to my district."

Jodrey said he is pleased with the shape of the nation's economy but feels that Maine still needs to make improvements in its business policies. "The state needs to continue taking an active role in attracting new business to the state and modifying our tax laws to make sure they stay. We also need to strip away regulations that limit the growth opportunities of our small businesses."

During his first term in the House, Jodrey believes he has proven his commitment to representing his constituents' interests. He supported exempting pensions from Maine income tax, lowering the sales tax to 5 percent, increasing General Purpose Aid to Education, increasing the debt limit for school construction, and expanding the Low-cost Drug for the Elderly and Disabled program. He also voted against the gas tax increase.

Jodrey said he plans to continue to support policies that will: reduce government regulations on business, lower taxes for working families, improve rural roads and bridges and improve access and availability to affordable prescription drugs and health care, particularly long-term care for the elderly.

Jodrey is a member of the Joint Standing Committee on State and Local Government. Jodrey, a lifelong resident of Bethel, is a tree farmer and a retired Portland Pipeline Corporation maintenance supervisor. He has served on the Bethel Planning Board, Budget Committee and Board of Selectmen for 19 years. He is currently serving on the Bethel Board of Assessors and the Airport Advisory Committee. Jodrey has also served on the Maine Municipal Association Executive Committee and as president of the Oxford County Municipal Officers.

Currently, Jodrey is serving on the Androscoggin Council of Governments Collectors Roads Committee and on the Maine DOT Route 26 and 2 Corridor committees and Regional Transportation Advisory Committee. He is a member of Bethel Lodge 97, trustee and chair of the Building Committee of the Bethel Historical Society, trustee of Community Concepts, and a corporator of Stephens Memorial Hospital.

Lovejoy running in District 70

Jolene Lovejoy of Rumford recently announced her Clean Election candidacy for the Maine House of Representatives, District 70. The District includes the towns of Rumford and Woodstock.

"I am committed to my community through my dedication and participation in many local organizations," Lovejoy said. "As a member of those organizations, I have had the opportunity to 'work and connect' with a tremendous amount of people. It was in part this experience that made me decide to become a Clean Election candidate. I want to go to Augusta with one thought in mind, to represent the people of District 70. Yes, those people that go to the polls and elect their Representatives. I won't go to Augusta to represent organizations or myself; I'll go there to represent the people that make up our communities, no matter what their affiliation."

"When I recently heard that CMMC was petitioning the state to have a new cardiac care unit located at their Lewiston hospital, I thought what a win-win situation for the people of our area. I could imagine what it would mean to have quality care at less than half the distance (currently a four-hour round trip). I was certainly overwhelmed to have over 1,500 citizens respond to the petition in support of such a facility. We need to make the right connection."

"In the past few years I have become an advocate for our local senior citizens. I have seen and heard firsthand how difficult it is for our seniors to afford the high costs of prescription drugs as well as medical care. Our seniors need someone who will speak up for them in Augusta where it counts. I have also found that many senior citizens are not aware of state programs that they might qualify for. We need to make that right 'connection' with our seniors."

"I am presently completing my fifth year as a selectman in the town of Rumford, a position that I intend to continue with after my election to the state House of Representatives."

I have recently been selected to go to Washington, D.C., to appear before the news media in regard to the Clean Election program," Lovejoy said. "I am very honored to be one of four candidates, from Maine, to be invited to participate in this three-day event, in our nation's capital. Later this month I will also be interviewed by NBC News, out of New York City, regarding the Clean Election program and how and why I came to be a participant."

Lovejoy is involved with many organizations within the community: local volunteer for Androscoggin Home Health and Hospice, Board of Directors of the River Valley Healthy Communities Coalition, Board of Directors of the Children's Museum, Moontide Water Festival Committee, Solid Waste Board, President-elect of the Rumford Area Rotary Club, Rumford Oral History Project, Oxford County Finance Committee, Muskie Memorial Committee, and the Rumford Historical Society. She is a graduate of the Leadership Maine program, which also counts among its alumni Governor Angus J. King Jr.

School Budget, incumbents win

SAD44 REGION—SAD44 voters Tuesday overwhelmingly passed the proposed 2000-2001 budget of $7.86 million. The margin of passage was more than 4-1 in some towns here. In the Republican primary for Maine's Second Congressional District, voters here followed the district-wide pattern, opting nearly 2-1 for long-term legislator Richard Campbell over political newcomer Lynwood Winslow. In the only other contested primary here, three-term State Rep. Tom Winsor R-Norway, defeated Marge Medd by a vote of 538-193. Of the four towns in the district, Medd did best in Greenwood, where she received 16 votes to Winsor's 27. All Bethel town elections were uncontested. Incumbent Selectman Reggie Brown was reelected, and incumbent Arlan Jodrey was elected as a write-in to another three-year term as assessor. School Board members Frances Head and Deborah Day-Oliver did not seek reelection. Their seats will be filled by newcomers Becky Cummings and Diane Smith, a write-in. Bethel's annual Town Meeting was to continue Wednesday evening (after The Citizen presstime). Town Meeting actions will be reported in the June 22 issue of the newspaper.

Librarian needs flexible hours

ANDOVER—A rigid working schedule for the town librarian is doing harm to the library's programs, two Andover residents told the Board of Selectmen Tuesday. Currently, librarian Christine Mulvaney works 16 hours for the four days the library is open, plus one extra hour each day, for a total of 20 hours. The schedule was set out in policy recently approved by selectmen. Andrea Bretz Savitz said at a board meeting Tuesday Mulvaney does not have time to purchase books or do research to keep the library's offerings current. Resident Ann Glazier agreed, and added that the board's policy of not discussing Mulvaney's job without her being present prevents the board from receiving questions and comments from the public. Mulvaney has not been authorized to attend selectmen's meetings since the schedule policy went into effect several weeks ago.

SAD44 shifts personnel

BETHEL—The SAD44 Board of Directors Monday considered several personnel changes for the 2000-2001 school year. Resigning were Eric Joergens, Telstar French teacher; Kirk Rentschler, CPS grade 4 teacher; Leslie Rosenberg, elementary art teacher and Lorene Cobb, ed tech II. Michael Gilbert, TMS social studies teacher, was approved to transfer to the French position vacated by Joergens. New appointments included Melissa Poston, TMS English teacher; Denise Rinaldi, library media specialist for Telstar; Scott Parker, TMS health/physical education teacher and Susan Whitney, Telstar custodian.

Too much cleaning in Newry?

NEWRY—Newry Cleanup Days proved extremely popular this year — so popular, said selectmen, that they may have to rethink the operation. The annual cleanup allows townspeople to drop off large items for disposal at a Sunday River Ski Resort parking lot. This year, however, brought an unusually large amount of metal — including an old sander. Some of the large metal pieces will have to be cut up before they are hauled away, creating an added expense. Selectmen also said it appeared some items brought in came from other towns. In the future, they said, an attendant may be necessary to ensure the cleanup goes smoothly.

World Cup coming here

NEWRY—Sunday River Ski Resort will be the venue for the first World Cup freestyle competition ever to be held in New England. The Sprint U.S. Freestyle Grand National is scheduled for January 27-29 at the Newry resort. The event is part of the FIS World Cup Tour, and will include aerial and mogul competition, and one other competition to be selected later.

OOMPAA production planned

PARIS—The Oxford Hills Music & Performing Arts Association (OHMPAA) will stage A.R. Gurney's adult comedy "Sylvia" early this summer at the Paris Academy Theater on Paris Hill. Four local performers have been cast in the comedy about mid life crisis — Elton Cole, Kathy Davis, Trish McAllister and Wayne Pike. Show dates are June 22, 23, 24, 25, 29, 30, and July 1. The June 25 performance will be a 4 p.m. matinee. All other performances begin at 8 p.m. Tickets are available at $10 each for adults and $8 for seniors at Books-N-Things in Oxford. Because of the adult theme of the play, no children's tickets will be offered.

Horse show this weekend

ANDOVER—The Ellis River Riders Club will host a horse show on June 10 and 11 at the show grounds on the Airport Road. Saturday's events will include showmanship, pleasure and equitation in English and Western classes. All ages may participate. Sunday will feature electronically timed games, including Maine quarter horse pointed poles and barrels. Both days' events begin at 9 a.m., rain or shine. Anyone interested in participating may sign up online at www.ellisriverriders.com

Ski resorts buy insurance

DENVER, Colo.—Several Colorado ski resorts cut their losses in one of the industry's worst-ever seasons by taking out insurance for no-show skiers in no-snow years. Final season figures were expected to show the second straight major decline in the numbers of skiers and snowboarders who hit the slopes in the nation's number-one ski state. Resorts in many other states also fared poorly. Aspen is thinking of joining Vail, Crested Butte and Telluride in buying a policy like one offered by MDM Group Associates, a Steamboat Springs-based company. "It takes the crystal ball out of running a resort," said Joe McNasby, of MDM. This year the group will pay out more than $20 million to resorts from California to New England. Eighteen resorts around the nation have signed up for it, and French and Australia ski areas now are considering similar policies. A $6.2 million payout helped Vail resorts post a 42-percent increase in income during the quarter ended April 30, from $30.2 million last year to $42.8 million this year, the company reported last week.

Hemlock pest alert

AUGUSTA—The Maine Forest Service is urging homeowners who have hemlock trees to examine them for the pest, Hemlock Woolly Adelgid now through the end of June. The time period is critical because the pest is very conspicuous now. The MFS issued an emergency order May 22 to all landscapers and nursery owners prohibiting the importation and movement of hemlock nursery stock. Homeowners who have planted hemlocks within the last five years or who have them on their property are encouraged to make a quick inspection. The pest poses no threat to humans. To identify it, check the underside of twigs at the base of the needles; look for one or more small, puffy white balls the size of the tip of a cotton ear swab; if you suspect infestation, do not disturb the tree; contact the Forest Service at (800) 367-0223 immediately. More information is available on the MFS website at www.state.me.us/doc/mfs/mfshome.htm.

Watch for cyclists Friday

NEWRY—More than 1,600 cyclists will leave Friday from Sunday River Ski Resort for the Trek Across Maine: Sunday River to the Sea. To avoid delays, residents traveling along the 180-mile route from June 16 through 18 are advised to take alternate routes. Cyclists will travel the Sunday River Road and Route 2 on the first leg of the trip.

From the Bethel Police Log:

He didn't listen the first time

At 12:55 a.m. on June 12 police saw a juvenile smoking a cigarette leave an apartment on Main Street. The officer spoke to the subject, and could detect the smell of alcohol. The subject said he had had a beer after work. The officer told him to go back into the apartment until morning. But the subject was then observed walking down Main Street. When questioned again by the officer, the subject said he was walking home. The officer said he would give him a ride, and asked if he had anything on his person. At that time, the juvenile removed two containers of beer from his pockets, along with a package of cigarettes. The subject was then taken home and issued summonses for the offenses in the presence of his parents.

Thursday, June 8

At 4:35 p.m. police received a report that a subject did not have a license but was currently driving around with another subject. The vehicle was located and stopped on Main Street. Madeline G. Howard, 43, of Bethel was arrested for operating after suspension and taken to the Oxford County Jail. The passenger, Richard Hatstat, 43, also of Bethel, was summonsed for permitting unlawful use.

Saturday, June 10

At 5:25 p.m. police stopped and summonsed Kevin M. Cuddy, 25, of Winterport for operating with an expired registration since December of 1999.

This report highlights points of interest from the Bethel Police Department log, but does not include all reports of police activity. To reach the Bethel Police Department, call 911 in emergency situations, 824-3437 in non-emergencies.

HERO'S WELCOME—Telstar's Steve Estes (left) is congratulated by teammates Wade Osgood and Kaleb Durgin after driving in the tying run with two outs in the bottom of the seventh inning against Livermore Falls. Estes was replaced on first base by pinch runner Will Seames, who scored the winning run moments later on a hit by Ross Baker, who can be seen at the plate behind Estes. (See team photo in ad, page 10).

He stumbled slightly as he rounded third. With catcher Chad Flagg blocking the plate, Seames dove for home as Flagg caught the on-the-money relay throw.

"Safe," signaled the umpire. Seames immediately disappeared under a pile of celebrating Rebels.

Telstar will face Eastern Maine champ Stearns High School Saturday in the state championship game, to be played at St. Joseph's at 7 p.m.

traditional "Pomp and Circumstance" procession, the Rev. Richard Mowery will open the ceremony. Class members Jen Shaw and Tracey Gibbs will then provide accompaniment for the National Anthem.

Those attending will be welcomed by senior Student Council co-presidents Abbie Beane and Lacy Phillips. Third honors speaker Jessica Walker, salutatorian Beane and valedictorian Gail Aloisio will follow.

"Reflections" will be offered by Chris Marcum and Lacy Hebert. All class members will then join in singing "With a Little Help from my Friends," by John Lennon and Paul McCartney. Gibbs will be the pianist for the musical selection.

SAD44 School Board chair Kelly Scotti of Andover will then offer congratulatory remarks on behalf of the board, followed by Supt. Kent Rosberg's certification of the graduates. Ted Davis, in his final year as principal, will present the diplomas.

Class co-presidents Jon Shaw and Amy Hebert will give the farewell, and Mowery the closing.

The recessional, with Beverly Melville as pianist, will conclude the Commencement Exercises.

Road work

Just south of the village, the shoulders will be eight feet wide.

Curbed sidewalks will also be constructed in the village. The combination of curbs and narrowing shoulders as cars approach Locke Mills, said Watson, will hopefully encourage drivers to slow down to the posted 35 mile-per-hour speed limit. "As the shoulder narrows up, they should know something is changing," he said.

A combination of cutting down a rise just north of Bob's Corner

Store and filling in across from Gilbert Manufacturing should improve the sight distance. A crosswalk is also planned for people going to the Post Office, said Watson.

Three intersections along the section of road will also be changed in order to bring them into Route 26 at a 90-degree angle. The Gore Road will also be cut down some vertically, said Watson, to improve visibility. The Johnny's Bridge Road will be brought into Route 26 by way of what is now a grassed triangle located near the current intersection. The East Bethel Road plan is still in the works, said Watson. "It's still up in the air because of right of way issues," he said.

The estimated cost of the overall project is just under $2 million, said Watson.

Bridge

Mason Township.

The cost to repair the bridge could range from an estimated $10,000 for new wooden decking, to between $14,000 and $17,000 for steel decking (which the Maine Department of Transportation recommends).

The bridge could also qualify for full maintenance under the State and Local Bridge Program, since its span exceeds 25 feet and it provides access to a dead-end road.

But the catch here, Cole said, is that for DOT to take the bridge into the program, it must first be brought up to engineered standards, and that would cost from $300,000 to $500,000, of which 40 percent must come from a local match.

The town was approached by residents beyond the bridge about making the repairs, Cole said, but he was reluctant to move ahead because of the cost.

"It's not in the capital plan. There are other roads in town that could use $17,000 of work," Cole said, "and the road and the bridge itself do not serve anyone in Bethel."

The town's options, Cole said, are to do nothing, to come up with the money and fix the bridge outright, to discontinue the road up to a point just easterly of the bridge, or to approach MDOT again and try to work out some arrangement by which the state would adopt the bridge as is.

The selectmen were sympathetic to the situation of the Mason residents, but not ready to plunge ahead and spend Bethel taxpayers' money.

"We'd love to see them have a bridge," said chairman Dutch Dresser, "but we're not ready to sign that purchase order either."

Neither is the county.

Cole said he approached the county administrator and was told the commissioners would be likely to discontinue the road in Mason rather than take on responsibility for the bridge.

Selectman Reggie Brown expressed surprise. "If the county doesn't want to do anything to it and they're the only ones who draw any tax dollars from it, why should we do it," he said. "I can't imagine they'd leave three families stranded on the other side of the bridge, rather than maintain it themselves."

Cole said that on the basis of a preliminary review of the relevant statutes, MMA lawyers told him the town did not face any liability should it decide to discontinue its section of the Smith Farm Road.

But Bethel Financial Officer, Neta Littlefield was still concerned about liability, especially since Bethel is being paid by the county to provide emergency services in Mason.

"If they're paying you for it but you couldn't get a fire truck or ambulance to those houses, that's going to leave someone liable, namely us," she said.

Dresser suggested Cole approach MDOT and the county once more, and see if some resolution could be worked out.

Of their initial response, he said, "I wonder if the first blush response is the ordinary bureaucratic response: 'It's not our responsibility.'"

The Smith Farm Road was a private road until the late 1940s or early 1950s, when it was taken over by the town, according to former director of public works Bob Davis.

Ironically, the original bridge on the Smith Farm Road was located in Mason Township. The present bridge, in Bethel, was built in the early 1960s, Davis said.

It cost $4,000.

Shifting Communities

Changing Mores

Davis said that many substance abuse programs they've tried in the past have depended on extended community involvement. "At first everybody will be very excited about it. But after a year or two, people pull out, and it falls right in

"At the same time that we have those parents of kids," Clough said, "we also have those people as can't deal with it. They've got problems of their own, with their partners or their two jobs and their upwardly mobile inclinations. The kids are happy to choose whatever model pleases them for the moment because kids are pretty much interested in now. They're not interested in next year. They don't believe that anything that happens in ten years is even worth thinking about. You feel invulnerable at this age."

The Myth of Disaffected Students

Clough challenges the notion that education today, particularly here in Maine, is not successful. He spent the past year as president of the New England Association of Schools and Colleges. This position presented him with the opportunity to travel throughout New England meeting with educators from all over the region.

Clough said, "There have always been a lot of kids who will tolerate schooling and survive it, put up with it, but not like it. But later on, they will realize they have been they will realize they have benefited from it. Their parents are never going to be happy as they are going through it because their parents are going to see these kids as disengaged and uninvolved students. I think that's a condition of the process. You work with that the best you can. It is one of the hazards of the trade. What you do with those kids is you deal with them as best you can. You try to understand them; you try to move things around and jigger your system so that they can find a place, something or somebody in that school, for them to connect with."

Connecting with Success

Many students connect with aca-

Davis points out the successes of Special Education, where children with learning disabilities have Individual Education Plans (IEP) designed for them. IEPs help teachers recognize the way these students learn the best and the way they can best show what they've learned. Davis sees the day coming when all students will have an IEP, and he believes it will be a good thing because each student is special.

Assessing what a student has learned and what they are capable of achieving is an important part of education, Davis explained. It is how educators know where a student stands. Davis just interviewed a potential teaching candidate from Simmons College in Boston. During the course of the interview, they discussed the method used to assess students at Telstar. "She said

The goal of academic success in both schools is often achieved by encouraging students to connect with a teacher outside the classroom in an extracurricular activity. Both Davis and Clough see a trend to more and more adult-organized activities for teenagers. While this may create opportunity for kids to find a back door into learning, Clough worries that kids are becoming dependent on adults to organize their time and activities, falling back on the TV or computer when nobody else has planned something for them to do. Davis echoes the concern, missing the days when kids played neighborhood baseball games.

The Decision to Retire

Davis and Clough have each been planning on retirement for several years now. Much of that planning has centered on positioning their schools for new leadership. They both recognize the importance of knowing when to step down.

Clough said, "These jobs are very confining in a certain way. There's not much real opportunity — after you've done them for a long time — for personal growth. You sense that you need some time for recharging, otherwise you're not the model that the kids ought to see. You are the bureaucrat who's standing still directing things but not coming up with new ideas. I think institutions like ours really ought to have some new ideas and not just repetitive information. You empty out after a while. I'm looking forward to continuing my education, which I feel has been interrupted by all this administering."

For one more year, Clough will continue to keep Gould running smoothly. He's not ready to talk about what he'll do after he retires.

Davis wants to take time to reflect before he decides what to do next. "The thing I always wanted when I retired was to feel good about myself, and I feel great. It's been a wonderful experience."

VOLUNTEERS TACKLE STEEPLE WORK
The congregation of the Bethel Church of the Nazarene — which is trying to raise the money (or volunteers) to give the church a badly needed face lift — received a big lift this weekend from three employees of Bancroft Counstruction. The three — William Murphy of Bryant Pond, Jonathan Morgan of Greenwood and Michael Grover of North Waterford — volunteered to paint the church steeple, using a crane donate by their company. They found the steeple in need of a bit more than just painting, so they plan to be back on the job in a couple of weeks.

The Way I See It

by Sharon Bouchard

Can you believe that we're headed right smack into the two best seasons in Maine - the summer season and the tourist season. I consider it the best time of the year.

The summer season is great just because it's summer. No snow, no ice, no cold. The tourist season is great (that's right, I said the tourist season is great) because it's a tremendous shot in the arm of the local economy. Before you start moaning and groaning about those folks from "away" just remember there are a lot of businesses around that have been limping along since the Christmas season and the tourist trade helps to put them on solid ground again.

The "out-of-staters" come here to spend money and to enjoy the natural beauty of our lakes and coastline, our mountains and our dense forests. They come here to escape the hectic pace of city living and to unwind in the peacefulness of our slower lifestyles. God only knows, they need it.

There are certain things the tourists expect here in Maine like lobsters, clams, clean lakes and pure air and that's partly what we have to offer. They also expect us locals to act like...well, they expect us to act like Mainers. So folks, it's time to bone up on Mainespeak and start talking just as if we don't know no othah language - ayuh.

I might be steppin into John McDonald and Tim Sample's area, but I'm gonna do it anyhow cause I got me a suspicion that some of you folks need one of them refreshah courses cause you might be a bit rusty aftah goin all year talking normal.

Those of you who speak fluent Mainespeak all the time jist pay me no nevah-mind.

The rest of you, no need to thank me at all, I'm gonna help you out jist so's you don't embarrass the rist of us by talking jist as if you got a brain. You gotta remembah a good many of those outtastahs think we was all born ignorant and been losing ground evah since. We don't wanta disappoint em now do we?

So let's start by practicin givin directions; that's something we do a heap of. There's a few approaches you can take here when asked by a tourist how to git somewhere.

Tell em (1) You can't git thar from heah (2) go up the rud bout a couple of miles and hook a left where the old church used to be (make sure you walk away before they know whats hit em). If a flatlandah wants to know how to git to where they're already at, tell em "Don't move a damn inch." Don't forget to throw an ayuh or two in when you're talking cause they really like that.

One thing the tourists really seem to like is a Maine type answer to their questions. If they ask you how ya doin, you can't jist say "good," you gotta elaborate a bit. "Fine as frog's hair split right down the middle." "Happy as a clam at high tide." "Jist as happy as if I had a brain." Or "I been bettah but it cost me more." There are all good answers and sure to make the tourist as happy as you're telling em you are.

Another thing the tourists like to do is dickah with us Mainers. So turn your doorway into a flea market and git rid of some of that junk you been keeping around the house and make a few bucks while ya at it. Remembah, a lot of them tourists got short arms and long pockets, but you can still sell em some of your stuff if you market it right. You got a wheel barrow with a busted wheel, call it a plantah and put a $15 price tag on it and I guarantee it will sell lickety split.

When you're talking to a tourist you gotta talk real slow; I mean slower than you usually do. They come from the city where they talk so darn fast they finish a sentence before they even start it, so they like it when we talk real slow. They're apt to comment on it too. I like to tell em that if they think I talk slow, they otta meet my sistah; she talks so slow that one time on a date with a fellow, before she could tell him she warn't that kinda girl - she was.

Gits em every time. Don't make no mattah that I don't even have a sistah. They think I'm so slow I gotta speed up jist to stop.

Speakin of speed, watch out when you're out there jist travelin down the rud. One of the less desirable traits about the tourists is that some of em drive hell-bent for election right heah in downtown and they got more nerve than a toothache when they go to pass. They ain't all like that anymore than we are, but there's jist enough so's you wanna drive as cautious as a prostitute at confession.

The point that I'm trying to make is that the tourists are a pretty important part of the Maine economy. They really ain't a whole lot different than you an me. Oh sure, some of em git things a little barseackwards once in a while and a few of em ain't too tightly wrapped, but we got some locals jist like that too. If they want us to talk like a bunch of hicks for their amusement, that ain't too much to ask. We like to do it anyways.

So jist be neighborly when the tourists are around. They're basically nice folks and we sure don't wanta put the kibosh to their comin here and spreadin some of their city dollars around. Besides, the way I see it we're never too old to learn something stupid and they jist might have a lot to teach us. Ayuh

I saw a Baltimore oriole the other morning. He sat on the porch railing and looked in the window.

I enjoyed the article on soap making in the June 1 issue of the Bethel Citizen, Heather.

Neighbor Janice brought me some rhubarb and some rhubarb squares Sunday. I ate the squares and they were delicious. I cooked the rhubarb, and Janice told me some folk added crushed pineapple to the cooked rhubarb, so I tried it and it was delicious. Of course strawberries added to rhubarb is also a good combination.

Vada Glover spent the day with me Tuesday and we played cribbage. We went over across the street and Gail cut my hair. We went to Gorham Wal-Mart and had a lovely luncheon special at Wilfred's. It was baked haddock with two slices of tomato on it and melted cheese. It was called "Haddock Melt" and it was delicious. We played 15 games of cribbage, and I managed to win eight, so I gained five game on her and am now on six behind.

Thanks to Barbara and Meg for phoning me and giving me the address to write and have birthday and anniversary greetings sent from the president. It is for those 80 years old or older and for folks married 50 years or more. I had sent a request to Sun Spots asking for the address. And they printed my request in the Sun Journal on June 6.

Flornce Morgan was a recent visitor of her sister, Eva Lane, at the Bethel House.

Have a nice week everyone, and God bless.

Lake Mills

Bertha Flanders will be honored on the occasion of her 90th birthday at an Open House on Sunday June 25, from 1 to 4 p.m. at the American Legion Hall Post 68, Gop Road, Locke Mills.

Upton

by Eleanor LeComte
It wasn't bad enough that the price of oil soared, but we sure weren't prepared to use it until the Fourth of July. While people down in the lower New England states were having heat waves, we were here resurrecting the winter jackets to keep warm. The flowers have an enigma. Some of them are right on schedule, others are small and puny. The soil has not warmed up yet. Only a few hardy seeds are surviving. The next time I write I promise to complain about the bugs and the heat.

The Bethel Citizen, last week, published an ad for the sale of a secluded cabin on 62 beautiful acres here in Upton. Since not many camps and homes have changed hands lately, it stirred my curiosity. I found out that it was Monty Washburn's camp. Monty died a few years ago, but when he was alive he was quite a guy. He had a great habit of knocking on your door at 5:30 or 6 a.m., cigarette going strong and a big smile on his face. Monty always said yes to coffee and proceeded to tell stories and jokes for at least two hours. Most mornings he would head for Addie's Restaurant in Andover for a high-cholesterol breakfast before visiting in at least three towns. His humor was unsurpassed when he was a regular contributor to the Maine Times. Monty's camp is down off Brooks Hill on Route 26. His camp was a source of pride to him and he spent many happy years at the site. His description of the camp fit the name he gave to his property, "Camp Oleo," one of the cheaper spreads. Monty didn't use the cheaper spread, "margarine," he preferred butter which he bought from Fred Judkins. I read an article on "Fiddleheads" that he wrote in which he said, "they were just a weed unless Freddie's butter drenched them thoroughly." There were many stories about Monty. My favorite was about the partridge that would attack his hat every time it got the chance. He had a movie to prove it. Upton and Andover residents were very fond of him, and he lives on with us with the often-repeated stories he told.

Another article in The Bethel Citizen that caught my eye was Alison Aloisio's article on turkeys; moose and deer used to be our major living road hazard. However, we do have a few others. A few years ago a young fellow in a small car hit a coyote and did a great rollover into the ditch. This happened at the Public Landing in Cambridge, N.H. The lucky chap didn't get a scratch.

Believe it or not, we have "killer rabbits" up here. My husband was heading for Errol, N.H. a year or so ago when he was confronted with one of these uncanny beasts. No, it was not after cocktail hour, it was at 10 a.m. A hare leaped up from the side of the road and smashed the grille on his truck to a fare thee well. Only Roger Tremblay, who repaired the truck, believed him.

He had repaired several grilles that "killer rabbits" had done in that spring. "Dumb Bunny," yes it was. Remember always that mother partridge and her brood have the right of way on Route 26. As far as the moose and deer are concerned, you are your own.

Fred Bilideau has erected yet another motel unit at "Windsong Gardens". The view is unobstructed.

All the camping areas have suffered from the unseasonable "horrid weather." If there were visitors in town over the weekend, I didn't see them. They were all inside by the fire.

There is a "Bird of the Week." The thicket by the Dead Cambridge River is hosting a number of warblers. My favorite and a commonly seen bird is the yellow-breasted chat. He is a little larger than the other warblers, or so it seems to me. He has a thick bill and usually is yellow in the throat, dark on the topside, with white spectacles. His belly is white. He is noisy and follows you while making a variety of whistles, and gurgles a light cackle. He is beautiful, and to come across one automatically brightens your day.

East Stoneham

by Eleanor Nelson
Hi readers. How are you this week? Haven't the lilacs been lovely this year. I love the smell of them. Some people are allergic to them, but I'm glad I'm not.

Well, it was good to get back to work a little bit at Evergreen Valley Inn last Saturday. They are open now for reservations.

Also, last Saturday was the first of the summer church Thrift and Bake sales here in Stoneham. We have some really good items on sale at the Stoneham Church. There are good blankets and comforters, nice dresses, pretty dishes, lots of toys, etc. There is one item that nobody knows what it is — it's a mystery. Also on the bake sale table there are pies, brownies, cookies, breads, etc. We usually have sugar-free things, too. Come on in and see what we have for sale.

Don't forget our first-church supper is June 22. That is also the date of the D.U.V. Maine Department convention in Waterville.

I hope you all take advantage of your right to vote on June 13.

On Wednesday, June 7, 20 members of the North Waterford Senior Citizens met at the Willy-Dee restaurant in Harrison. This was a nice gathering of people and all had a nice lunch. Arlene Wood presented a gift from the group to the Rev. Janice Wilcox, who is leaving us to move back to Worcester, Mass., within the next few months. We shall miss you, Janice and Everett. I don't know what we will do without you — carry on I guess. Good luck in your new venture.

Well, congratulations go out to those who are graduating this year. Granddaughter Molly is one of them from Lovell and our grandson, Jaffer Traish from Belmont High School in Belmont, Mass. Those from Stoneham who attended the Academy are Lauren LaPlante and Rhianne True. Again, congratulations to you all. You have worked hard to achieve this goal in life and good luck in your future plans.

Loretta Andrews and Everett Andrews celebrated their birthdays on Sunday, May 4, with Althea Sawyer in Fryeburg. Also present were Darlene and Nicky Dunn.

Frances Grant and Eleanor Nelson went to the Chapman Cemetery on Thursday, June 8, and placed flowers on their Aunt Goldie and Uncle Fred Wight and girls' graves. They also stopped at "Junior" Bennett's, at Riverside in Bethel, with flowers.

North Newry

by Gil Seeley

My cat Gemini's birthday was June 9. She is 17 years old. A dog will do anything to please its master, but a cat will do anything to please itself. Meow is like aloha, it can mean anything.

The annual Storyland Trip for Newry children will take place on June 26. For sign up and more information, call Nancy Babcock at 824-2115 by June 18.

Karlene Bachelder, Betsy Clark, Doris Parent and Gil Seeley went to South Paris to bowl at the Oxford Hills Bowling Lanes one day last week. On the overall scores, Karlene was high on the triples, beating Betsy by only five pins, but Betsy was high on the singles, beating Karlene by only three pins and Doris by eight pins. Karlene had two strikes, Doris two strikes and two spares, and Betsy two spares. They all went to lunch and did some shopping. Better luck next time, Gil.

Quiz: When was "The Year without a summer?" The year 1816 was known as the year without a summer because in the northern states there was frost and snow in every month of the year.

Family and friends helped Staci Littlehale celebrate her 19th birthday on June 5 at the home of her mother, Terri Littlehale, who made the birthday cake. Happy birthday, Staci.

EXCEPTIONAL CARE... EXCEPTIONALLY CLOSE TO HOME

Andover

by
Joan Stinson Carney

Guess what, I've made another mistake, or sin of omission is more like it, or both I guess. The mistake is that Butch Glover, who just turned 40 by the way, is not, repeat not quitting Andover Rescue. The omission was some of the guests that attended Sylvanus Glover's birthday party. They were Butch and Kay Glover's daughters, Heather and Maureen, and Jason and Belinda Glover. Sorry about that, Mea culpa.

Now this next item is something that fills me with a great sense of wonder. Christine and George Ladd celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary on June 1. It wasn't much of a celebration because George was in the hospital, but can you imagine being married to the same person for 60 years? Congratulations to you both, may you have another sixty.

Agnes Porter is having a stay at Ledgeview Nursing Home in West Paris. A visit or a card would be nice.

David Young is home recuperating from surgery on his arm, a call or a card would be nice, too.

Kim (Whitten) Stinson and Miranda Stinson are home for a few days visiting relatives. Alan had to work so he couldn't make it this time. Hi, baby brother.

Got a nice letter from Buddy Chase, who used to live in Andover. He gets The Citizen every week in Tucson, Ariz. He and his wife, Patsy, a former Waterville native, have lived there since 1980. His mother, Helen, and his sisters, Madeline Wells and Jean Gammon, and his son, Bob Chase, still live in Andover. His son, Brian, lives in Dixfield. It's really nice to hear from former Andover residents who have moved away but still keep in touch through this column, I'd love to hear from more. A subscription to The Citizen makes a great gift to a former resident who still wants to know what's going on around here.

I spent a couple of days in Boston last week. Got to see both my sons and my "maybe" future daughters-in-law. It was really great to be able to drive myself all that way, in fact somewhat of a miracle. In the '80s I developed panic attacks, most of them took place while I was driving, so it kind of limited me to depend on others to drive me places. I sincerely thank Dr. Richard DeCarolis of the Bethel Health Center, because he found the solution to my problem. I feel as though I accomplished something wonderful. I drove all the way down and back, drove in Boston traffic and didn't feel one twinge of panic. Now if I could only lose 100 pounds and 30 years, I'd be perfect.

Being gone for a few days makes me appreciate the beauty of Andover all over again. Now to those of you who know me, don't get me wrong, Boston is still my first love, but I have to admit that Andover with its surrounding mountains, its flowering trees and bushes, its green fields is a pretty wonderful place to visit. It's sad to see that the lilac is almost gone by and the apple blossoms are faded, but my lily of the valley is just about perfect and soon there will be roses and sweet william. Now if we could only find a way to keep the moose and the deer in corrals somewhere away from the roads and send all the mosquitoes and black flies to Texas, I'd be happy. Texas is big enough to handle them and far enough away so that they would probably never find their way home, and it's not as if we would miss them.

Until next week.

Greenwood City

by Colista Morgan

There are many things of great beauty in the world which so many of us miss, yet with an observing eye the world is full of hidden beauty.

The sun floods gently the eastern windows, as it comes up and when it sets, casts a soft light.

The geese are very near and the ducks quack their greeting from the channel down front.

The convention on the telephone wire is continuing. Their party? I know not; who cares. The swallows are here. They are a delightful sight circling in the air, the sun playing on their greenish-blue backs and their breasts a gleaming pure white. These social gatherers line the wires in close rows. The males utter their sweet little warbling twitters.

Tail-bobber Phoebe perches nearby and calls its name over and over.

Man-about-town, the flicker, has been giving his friendly knock, calling attention to his presence.

I miss the bluebird, this "Soft as an Angel's wing."

Of course, our native vocalist, the song sparrow, greets us at all times of day.

"I like the quick movement of wild things, the unexpected flash of hidden wings." — Grace Crowell

The earth teems now with its many miracles. A new queen goes to the throne. She is young, she is strong and she is beautiful. Her name? Nature. Her royal robe is the sky so blue, occasionally trimmed in shadows of white or gray. Happy spring.

Greenwood City is rather small, Or just seems that way/By many, who go by car/But larger if you stray./Don old jeans and pack a lunch./If you'd like to go on a walk./Maybe a visit first./Or have a helpful talk./You go to the pond's edge/And sniff the fresh air./Shed your shoes, a good treat./Enjoy the beauty there./Perhaps you'd rather take a look/At many other places./Many homes are owned today/By happy, familiar faces./Travelers or explorers and owners/Are just a very few/Who walk and visit/And see what's new./They visit the Ice Caves./Morgan Brook and others./Patch Mountain "our where we began"/To settle, without a plan./If you are strange, upon this land/And don't know what to do./Look around and ask someone./They'll be a friend to you./That's the way these people are/So warm, sincere and true./These "City" folks are something else./They're very far and few./As you stop upon the bridge/You're in the midst of town./Stand right there, don't blink./Or you'll miss what you just

I was pleased to hear from Miley and Eleanor. All is well with them.

Recently, Rena Curtis and family met for the weekend at her son Walter's camp.

Among my many visitors were Keijo Saarinen and his wife. They were here from Massachusetts. He went to school here.

Leonas Holt had surgery last Monday at the Maine Medical Hospital in Portland. He is doing well.

I walked outside a little this week, so I hope to do more as the days go by. It was good to sit in my lawn swing again and visit with the birds and squirrels.

Meet Jonathan Van Fleet, reporter for the Sun Journal. He can be found anywhere from the top of Mt. Katahdin to the basement of the Lewiston City Building in search of news. Jon is proud of his outdoor, sometimes offbeat stories, like interviewing the weatherman on the top of Mt. Washington. But he thinks the most important stories are those that help keep citizens informed. Staying on top of a City Council issue or a mountain, Jon gives our readers the facts.

SAD44 Last Days of School

The school year concluded this week for SAD44 elementary students, while the Telstar complex will finish Monday. Everyone was busy with year-end activities in recent weeks. Clockwise, from left, beginning page 10: The Telstar Music Department presented its annual Spring Concert, with the high school Treble Chorus & Select Ensemble and the High and Middle schools' Concert Band and High School Jazz Band. Here, the Concert Band takes a bow, and seniors Amy Green and Jen Shaw play trumpet in the jazz band. At WES, seven pupils (Kimberlei Dean, Joshua LaCroix, Keith McDonald, David Lawrence, Bill Demarest, Braydon Jackson and Joshua Campbell) were honored for perfect attendance during a flu-plagued year. Campbell was also recognized for 950 consecutive days of perfect elementary school attendance. The CPS PTA recently dedicated a playground swing purchased by the organization. Shown cutting the ribbon are officers Jeri Lyn Buckalew and Becky Cummings. Also at CPS, fifth-graders created "life masks" (this one by J.J. Whitman) as part of a project with art teacher Leslie Rosenberg. Telstar High School students in Tim O'Connor's Community Building Project seminar recently completed a steel pipe helicopter for the Davis Park playground in Bethel. Brian Walker, O'Connor and Shaun Hinckley work on the project here. Also helping was Bion Swan. Funding for the materials was provided by the Maine Community Foundation. Telstar Middle School seventh-graders participated in a three-day workshop on emergency medical training and search and rescue techniques. Area emergency personnel, parents and other volunteers helped with the effort. Danny Koris coaxes a small fire as part of training in safe fire-building. CPS fifth graders built duck boxes that will be placed at various locations in the White Mountain National Forest. The project was funded in part by a grant from the WMNF.

THE MILL CITY ALL AMERICANS

The Mill City All Americans (Millies) Baseball Team, in Lowell, Mass., season didn't start off quite as planned, losing to Middletown Giants 8 to 2 in the opener and then losing to Keene, NH Swamp Bats 8 to 6.

They did pick up their first win over the Rhode Island Gulls 7-0 behind the pitching of Thomas Klemm of St. Johns University. The radar gun had this lefty over 90 mph on numerous occasions.

President of the team, Neil Olson, says, "these kids can absolutely play the game. Our short stop has unbelievable range. Our pitching staff is so deep it will be hard to give all 10 pitchers enough innings."

The head coach, Chip Forest, of Harvard is very impressive. His temperament didn't change win or lose. I get the feeling that he and the players know they'll be at the top of the heap at the end of the season. Our home opener was Sunday, June 11. It will be very interesting to see how we draw at the gate.

A lot of people have put effort into making this thing work. If you care to see a game, Exit 38 off 495. You can see the lights of the field from turnpike. Easy on, easy off.

Call 875-5765 or write Neil Olsen at 760 East Bethel Road, Bethel, ME 04217 for a schedule. Home games: June 15, 18 (Halloween Night), 28, 29, 30.

Annual Drinking Water Quality Report for 1999 West Bethel Water System

PO Box 104, Bethel, ME 04217

We're pleased to present to you our Annual Drinking Water Quality Report. This report, a requirement of the 1996 amendments to the Safe Drinking Water Act, is designed to inform you about the quality of your water and services we deliver to you every day. Our constant goal is to provide you with a safe and dependable supply of drinking water. We want you to understand the efforts we make to continually improve the water treatment process and protect our water resources. We are committed to ensuring the quality of your water.

WATER SOURCE

Our water comes from two wells located behind the West Bethel Children's Center, off of Flat Rd. These two wells, which require no treatment, serve 125 people through 50 service connections.

The Maine Drinking Water Program will be evaluating all public water supplies statewide by the year 2003 as part of the Source Water Assessment Program. The evaluation will consider geology and hydrology, land uses, water testing information, and the extent of land ownership or protection by local ordinance to determine how likely our drinking water source is to be contaminated in the future. When this work is completed by the state it will be included in future versions of this report. For more information, contact the Drinking Water Program at 287-2070. For now, we have a similar, less-extensive plan, a Well-head Self-Evaluation Form, on file in our office. If you have any questions about this report or concerning your water utility, please contact Lucien Roberge, Superintendent, or Donald Katlin, Assistant Superintendent, at 824-2342. We want our valued customers to be informed about their water utility. If you want to learn more, please attend any of our regularly scheduled meetings. They are held on the third Tuesday of every month, 4 p.m., at the Bethel Water District office, 9 Philbrook St.

WATER QUALITY

The West Bethel Water System routinely monitors for constituents in your drinking water according to Federal and State laws. The following table shows any detection resulting from our monitoring for the period of January 1* to December 31*, 1999*. As you can see by the table, our system had no violations. We're proud that your drinking water meets or exceeds all Federal and State requirements. We have learned through our monitoring and testing that some constituents have been detected. The EPA has determined that your water is SAFE at these levels.

*If no tests were required for a given contaminant in 1999, the law requires that the most recent test results be included here. No test results over 5 years old are allowed, however.

Some or all of the following contaminants were tested for as regulated by law. Other elements are also tested for which do not require reporting, as they do not pose a potential health risk.

*This is naturally occurring fluoride. The optimal level for systems that fluoridate is 1-2 ppm.

Parts per million (ppm) or Milligrams per liter (mg/l) - corresponds to one minute in two years or a single penny in $10,000. Parts per billion (ppb) or Micrograms per liter - corresponds to one minute in 2,000 years, or a single penny in $10,000,000. Action Level - the concentration of a contaminant which, if exceeded, triggers treatment or other requirements which a water system must follow. Maximum Contaminant Level - The "Maximum Allowed" (MCL) is the highest level of a contaminant that is allowed in drinking water. MCLs are set as close to the MCLGs as feasible using the best available treatment technology. Maximum Contaminant Level Goal - The "Goal" (MCLG) is the level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MCLGs allow for a margin of safety.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION

All sources of drinking water are subject to potential contamination by constituents that are naturally occurring or are man made. Those constituents can be microbes, organic or inorganic chemicals, or radioactive materials. All drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that the water poses a health risk. MCLs are set at very stringent levels. To understand the possible health effects described for many regulated constituents, a person would have to drink 2 liters of water every day at the MCL level for a lifetime to have a one-in-a-million chance of having the described health effect. Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population. Immuno-compromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune system disorders, some elderly, and infants can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. EPA/CDC guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by cryptosporidium and other microbiological contaminants are available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

In our continuing efforts to maintain a safe and dependable water supply it may be necessary to make improvements in your water system. The costs of these improvements may be reflected in adjustments to the rate structure. We at the West Bethel Water System ask that all our customers help us protect our water sources. Please contact us with any questions.

Please look for the Bethel Water District 1999 Water Quality Report included in the quarterly billing being mailed June 30, 2000. If you do not receive one or would like an extra, please stop by our office or the Town Office where extras will be available free of charge. The Bethel Water District office is located on 9 Philbrook Street in Bethel and we may be reached by telephone at 824-2342.

Our constant goal is to provide you with a safe and dependable supply of drinking water. We want you to understand the efforts we make to continually improve the water treatment process and protect our water resources.

WATER SOURCE

Our water source is the Chapman Brook, which flows towards Bethel from Newry and the mountains to the northwest. We screen the water twice at the Chapman Brook Reservoir on Reservoir Road before treating it with chlorine to protect from possible contaminants and fluoride to promote dental health. It is then gravity fed to our 1075 customers through 430 service connections.

Because we do not filter and we own 2,300 acres surrounding the source, we have developed and implemented a Watershed Control. It is designed to prevent contamination of the Chapman Brook.

Similarly, the Maine Drinking Water Program will be evaluating all public water supplies statewide by the year 2003 as part of the Source Water Assessment Program. Parts per million (ppm) or Milligrams per liter (mg/l) - corresponds to one minute in two years or a single penny in $10,000. Parts per billion (ppb) or Micrograms per liter - corresponds to one minute in 2,000 years, or a single penny in $10,000,000. Nephelometric Turbidity Unit (NTU) - nephelometric turbidity unit is a measure of the clarity of water. Turbidity in excess of 5 NTU is just noticeable to the average person.

Action Level - the concentration of a contaminant which, if exceeded, triggers treatment which a water system must follow. Treatment Technique (TT) - a required process intended to reduce the level of a contaminant in drinking water. Maximum Contaminant Level - The "Maximum Allowed" (MCL) is the highest level of a contaminant that is allowed in drinking water. MCLs are set as close to the MCLGs as feasible using the best available treatment technology. Maximum Contaminant Level Goal - The "Goal" (MCLG) is the level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MCLGs allow for a margin of safety.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION

All sources of drinking water are subject to potential contamination by constituents that are naturally occurring or are man made. Those constituents can be microbes, organic or inorganic chemicals, or radioactive materials. All drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that the water poses a health risk.

Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population. Immuno-compromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune system disorders, some elderly, and infantas can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. EPA/CDC guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by cryptosporidium and other microbiological contaminants are available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

In our continuing efforts to maintain a safe and dependable water supply it may be necessary to make improvements in your water system. The costs of these improvements may be reflected in adjustments to the rate structure. Thank you for understanding. We at the Bethel Water District ask that all our customers help us protect our water sources. Please call our office at 824-2342 with any questions.

but they hear the door open and away they go. Now, Keith Hodson has some big corn patches, and he also has crows. In the past he has been much more successful in shooting them than I, and he usually has plenty of sweet corn for sale. I gotta talk to him and find out how he gets close enough to shoot 'em, or at least how to salvage my corn crop. If it ain't crows, it's coons that get the corn. I love to have wild animals around, but when they start wrecking my garden or livestock, they are fair game.

I bought eight baby chicks last month, because I kind of like having them around. I like having fresh eggs, too. Last Friday evening, when I went to feed the chicks, a couple of them seemed unusually friendly, following me around and letting me pick them up. Curious, I started counting and came up with a total of 12 chicks. Usually, when there's a discrepancy, it's in the other direction. There were four more barred rock pullets than I had before. Come to find out, Ted (John) Grover's daughter, Sandy, who teaches school in the Boston area, brought the chicks up to Rupert's. Rupert brought them up to me; only I wasn't home, and he left them in the chicken house. Sandy's class of elementary school kids hatched out the chicks and didn't know what else to do with them after school let out. Now I got more hawk food.

Bethel Historical Society's Regional History Center

The 8th annual Fourth of July Community Picnic featuring the Portland Brass Quintet will be held on Tuesday, July 4, beginning at noon on the grounds of the Dr. Moses Mason House if the weather is good or at the Middle Intervale Meeting House if it rains.

Contributions to support the appearance of the Quintet are again being sought in any amount and are tax deductible as allowable by law. Anyone wishing to contribute to become a sponsor of this event is urged to send contributions to the Bethel Historical Society at P.O. Box 12, Bethel, ME 04217-0012.

An exhibit, "Bethel: A Historic Town" will open on June 20 in the Molly Ockett Room of the Robinson House. This new exhibit will provide an overview of the town's past through historic images and selected artifacts from the society's extensive permanent collection.

Another 2000 exhibit, "Scenery of the White Mountains" will open on July 1 at the Dr. Moses Mason House Exhibit Hall. Featuring paintings, lithographs, engravings, maps, and large-scale photographs dating from the 1830s to the 1940s, this exhibit highlights images created for both popular and refined consumption. The White Mountain region of New Hampshire and Maine is unique for its combination of superb scenery, important historical associations and easy accessibility to millions of people in the northeastern section of the United States. Beginning around 1820, artists began producing images of this "Switzerland of America" for a broad public. By the time of the Civil War, photographers were also becoming important propagators of the image of the White Mountains throughout the nation.

The society's Mason and Robinson houses will be open to visitors Tuesday through Saturday, 1 to 4 p.m. through the summer. After July 1, the facilities will also be open on Sunday, 1 to 4 p.m. until Labor Day. Further information may be gained by calling the society office (207) 824-2908 or using the e-mail address history@bdc.bethel.me.us or visiting the web-site.

From the

Jackson-Silver Auxiliary

On May 18, Jackson-Silver American Legion Post and Auxiliary met jointly for the purpose of installation of the new officers. The ladies were installed first by Past District President Ann Kezal of Rumford Corner, assisted by Lucy Day and Agnette Austin of the Rumford Unit. The new officers are: president, Leah Deegan; first vice president, Florence Bailey; second vice president, Nancy Grover; secretary, Olive Risko; treasurer, Marianne Fifield; chaplain, Ada Cummings; sergeant at arms, Vera Cross.

The officers of the Post were installed by Past Department Commander Ed Roach, assisted by Country Commander Richard Grover and District Commander Jesse Pierce. Refreshments of pizza and beverages were served after the ceremonies.

The Auxiliary has met again on May 25 and June 1. Members reported having taken part in Memorial Day services at Newry on Sunday, May 28, and at Locke Mills, East Bethel and Bryant Pond on the 29th. Poppy chairman, Vera Cross, reported having received more funds for the distribution of the paper poppies than ever before. Mary Beth Hoover, granddaughter of Ken and Alice Hoyt of Bryant Pond, was an enthusiastic helper. The funds realized will all go to projects for veterans.

Also at the June 1 meeting, Rebecca West of South Rumford, a member since childhood, presented a plan for improving the garden area at the Western Maine Veterans' Home in South Paris. Having graduated from the University of Maine and having studied horticulture there, who could be more suitable for this project than the great-granddaughter of Past Department President Fannie Cummings, in whose memory this project is dedicated? It is through the contribution of funds from the Post that the Unit plans this garden.

There will be no meetings in July, but there will be a supper/dance on July 11, and the Auxiliary will give the monthly birthday party at the Western Maine Veterans' Home on July 18. It is hoped to also dedicate the new gardens at that time.

In August, the Auxiliary will sponsor a Red Cross Blood Drive on the 14th

From

Bethel Boy Scout Troop 565

Recently, Boy Scout Troop 565 of Bethel and Troop 133 of West Paris were invited to tour the USS Oscar Austin at Bath Iron Works. Early Sunday morning the two troops met IC1 Cleveland, a member of the Austin's crew, and boarded the ship for a tour that they will never forget.

They began with a tour of the latest addition to the class of destroyers, the helo hangars. The scouts were fascinated by the fact that the ship can hook a cable onto the helicopter and guide it onto the ship and into a specially designed hangar so that the deck can be clear for the next helicopter.

The next stop was the engine room, where a member of the engine room team explained about the engines, including the size and capabilities. The scouts asked many questions and received many answers.

The male scouts proceeded to the male berthing area, while the female scout leaders got to visit the female berthing facility. It was the consensus of the group that their bedrooms at home were not as bad after all.

After touring several other areas of the ship, the scouts were treated to a real meal aboard ship. They with their headphones they were given a lesson on how each person communicates information to the other. The scouts were allowed to talk to each other for about 15 minutes before it was time to move on. The last stop of the tour was to the pilothouse, where each scout was given the opportunity to sit in the captain's chair.

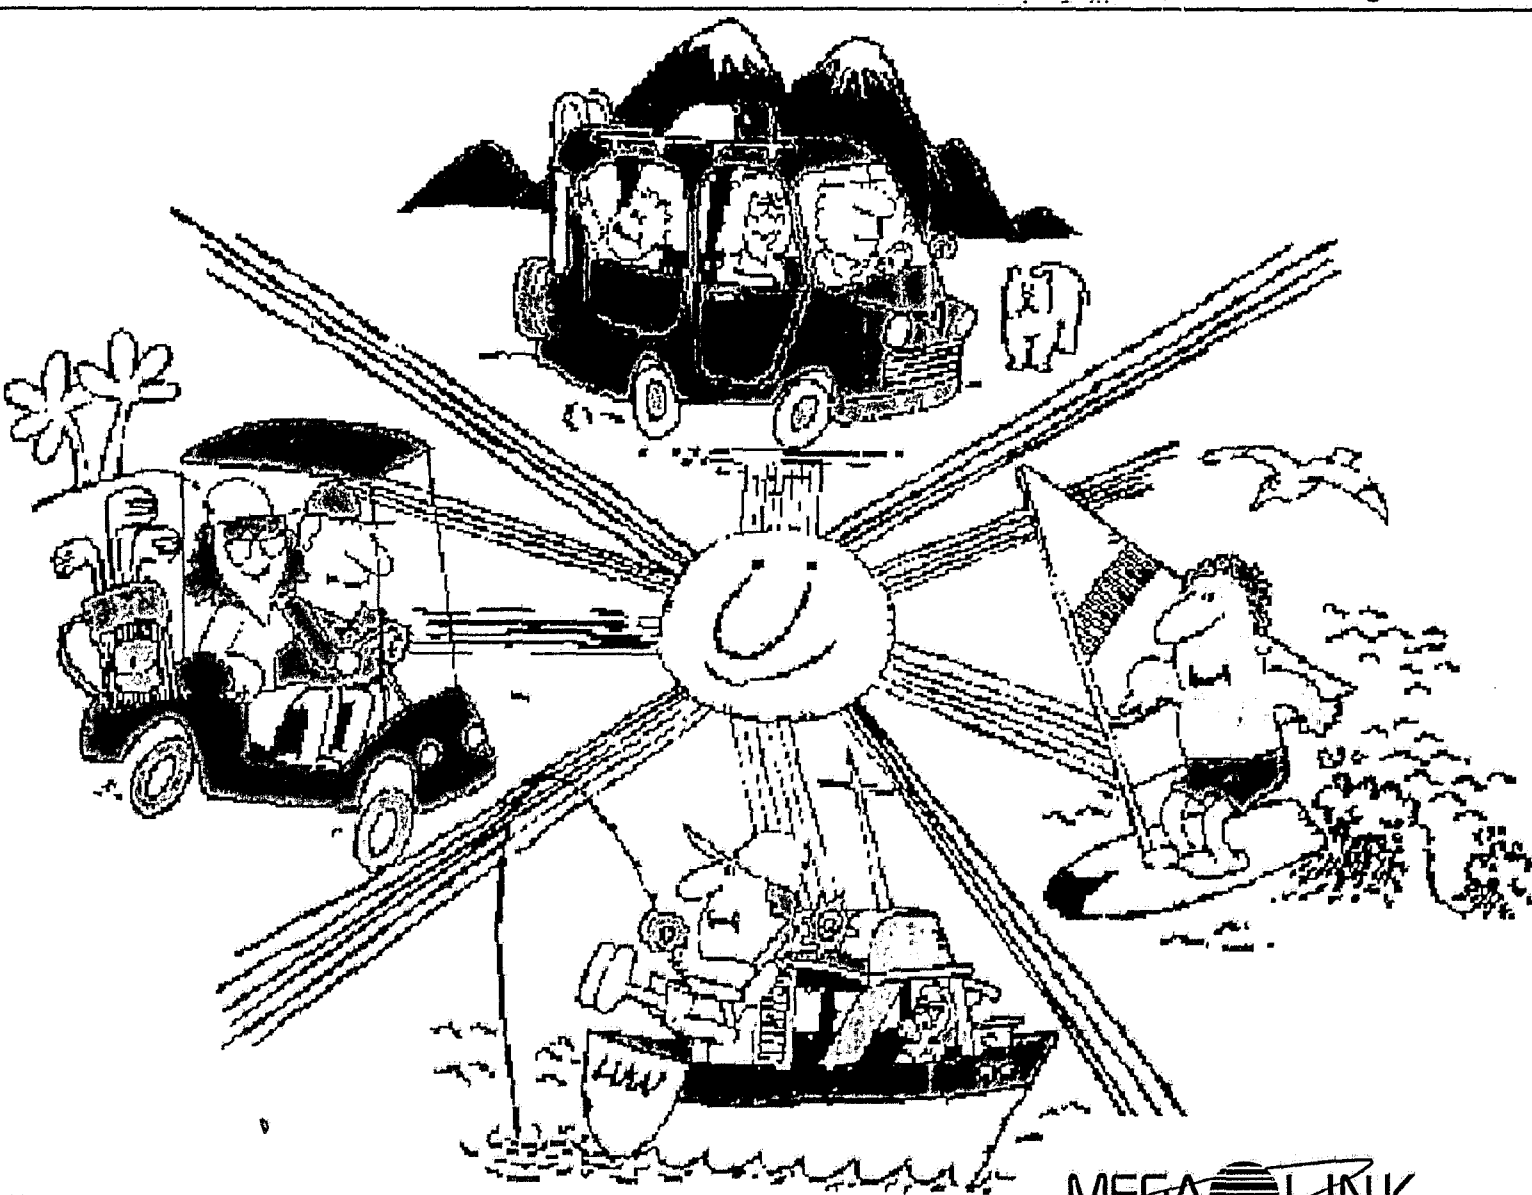

At the end of the tour, the scouts were allowed to see what happens if the ship were to catch on fire while out to sea. This was an unexpected addition to the scouts' tour joined the sailors in the crew's mess for brunch, which included everything from eggs and sausage to soup and sloppy joes. According to the boys, the best part was the chocolate milk dispenser, where they could drink all the chocolate milk that they wanted.

The high point of the tour came when the scouts were taken to the Combat Information Center. This center is where the ship's defense system is operated. OS1 Gaines, the guide for this area, seated every youth at a computer and donned but turned out to be a great experience.

The scouts were told that, for most of the crew, a tour of duty consists of two years aboard the ship. The scouts are hoping to be able to keep in touch with the crew of the Oscar Austin while they are on their tour of duty, as well as keep track of its routes and stops.

Those attending from Troop 565, Bethel: Mark and Adam Tanguay, both Eagle Scouts; Brandon Roberts and Jason Howe, 2nd class; Zack Meisner and Daniel Cox, scouts; David Roberts, committee chair; Lorraine Tanguay, assistant scoutmaster; Eugene Tanguay, Jr., scoutmaster. Troop 133, West Paris: JJ Stevens, Eagle Scout; Joshua Eichel, Joshua Noyes, Dylan Shimamura, Bill Austin, Nick Diconza, Mike Meghan and Greg Noyes, scouts; Chuck Noyes, committee head; Jamie Libby, assistant scoutmaster.
